SOME THINGS THEOLOGICAL BILLY JOEL CAN'T SWALLOW.

I do not write this paper in the spirit of controversy, but in the interest of what I conceive to be the truth. The doctrine of "once in grace, always in grace," I do not believe is sound theology and is not taught in the Bible.

The everlasting life spoken of by John is all right so far as God's part is concerned. The life is everlasting because he is everlasting. But his being everlasting does not imply that man's faith in him is everlasting or his obedience to him absolutely sure. There must be no break in our faith for it to be everlasting to us, for "God is no respecter of persons."

When God made a covenant with

Abraham he made it on conditions, he must forsake all and follow God. So it is with this everlasting life John speaks of. Read the contract between God and Abraham. "I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger—all the land of Canaan—for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God and thou shalt keep my covenant; then and thy seed after thee in their generations. This is the covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee. Every male child among you shall be circumcised, and it shall be a token of the covenant between me and thee. He that is born in thy house, or is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant." Gen. 17: 8-13.

Now, you see, Abraham must meet the conditions of this everlasting covenant to enjoy its benefits, and just so with this everlasting life, to enjoy its benefits we must meet the conditions, and the man who can not see this is in the dark.

Now, let us see what the Bible says on the subject. "But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness and committeth iniquity and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked doeth, shall he live? All the righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned, in the trespasses that he hath trespassed, and in the sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die." Eze. 18: 24. Does that read like "once in grace, always in grace?"

Read the life of Solomon and see how he came to the end of his life. Look also at Saul's life. Samuel had been showing him the word of God and in the 10th chapter of 1st Sam. we see that Saul was turned into another man and God gave him another heart. There is no way to get around this. Sad but true he turned out to be a murderer. This is one way we can get away from God and lose everlasting life, and in this way the spirit of the Lord departed from Saul and he ended his life by committing suicide.

Take the case of Judas, one of the twelve disciples called and sent out by Jesus to preach the gospel, heal the sick, cast out devils and raise the dead. Jesus said they had peace and could be as harmless as doves. Is this good religion? I think so, and I think Bro. King will have to put another mark on Judas. If Judas was not a good man why did Jesus say he should sit on one of the twelve thrones, judging one of the twelve tribes of Israel?

Like many other men who love money, he sold out for 30 pieces of silver and hung himself. Mat. 27:5. I believe many of our race have been lost because of this doctrine.

Oh, that I could stop the tide of error and turn the people toward God and the truth, and I give you this warning that your blood may not be on me at the judgement.

REV. A. C. BIDDLE IN MADISONVILLE HUSTLER.

As a citizen, a minister, and an educator, I am delighted with any increased interest in matters of education in our State. I hail with gladness any movement for the better education of the youth of the country. Wise legislation executed by far-sighted school authorities throughout the State, and this seconded by an awakened public sentiment, will do much to speedily lessen the shameful number of illiterates and put our country schools in the way of a healthful advancement. The entire State seems to be awakening. The "Whirlwind Campaign for Education" is an opportunity of a lifetime. No lover of education or of the best good of the common people should let it pass without an effort to do his best to promote it. Let us make a wise use of this opportunity that is afforded us, and while the public ear is attentive, and the public mind is awakening to the demand of a better education, strike while the iron is hot for more and better schools. And what is the best use to be made of this opportunity?

In my opinion there is no same use to strive to build or endow great colleges, either state or denominational, or plant and equip great State Normal schools, while ignorance and illiteracy is growing more and more prevalent in the rural districts. It is certainly not wise statecraft. What Kentucky needs, and needs most profoundly is not more nor greater colleges, but more and better country schools. That school is of prime importance to the State which is an absolute necessity to the general intelligence of the people. The boys and girls of the rich or well-to-do will educate; and it is not necessary or even wise to aid him to thus educate himself in affluence and luxury. To educate the boys and girls of the poor and working class is a problem. If State aid is given at all it should be upon the broad principle of aid to the masses and not to the privileged.

When State schools or County High Schools make a promise of a free tuition to the country boy or girl it is to draw away those who can attend or board in the town or city, leaving only the poor or hard working lad or lass to a poorer opportunity, and thus become a menace to general education. It is a high privilege to highly educate the youth of the State; but it is an absolute bounden duty to furnish all its citizens with a general education. Of course we should aid the college; but we shall most effectually do this by building up that without which no college can prosper, a broader, better condition of our rural schools. Public officers and public improvements, like public funds, are the property of the common people, and should be created and used for the general welfare of the public. I am old-fashioned enough to believe that all State and county funds raised or appropriated for education, should be used so as to benefit the masses and not classes. It is true that the Supreme Court of the State has decided that the State, through its Legislature, has the power to appropriate for education. I do not believe it is constitutional, however, but it is very evident to my mind that no State has a moral right to expend sums either great or small upon specific institutions, while the common schools of the State are in grave need of assistance. There should be no appropriations made, at least until the country schools are in better conditions.

The fact is that, in the spirit if not in the letter of the constitution, there should be no State or County schools save the common schools. Every district school in the State, by virtue of the constitution, is the school of the State, and there ought to be no other. "Whirlwind" all can in the glorious cause. "Campaign" every year if you must, but make it the great aim of your effort to better the conditions of the common schools in all your counties new and at home, and the colleges and higher education will reap the harvest by and by in the higher uplift of its general citizenship. Many a poor boy and girl in Kentucky are compelled by force of circumstances over which they have no control to spend the years of their schoolhood in the place where they were born, and by centralizing our institution of learning we shut them away from that without which all citizenship would be a failure and a curse: a general and wholesale intelligence. I plead for better houses for our country schools, better equipment for the work to be done, longer term of school privilege, and a higher place in the public estimation of the district and village school.
